

STARRING Jules

"Written in the Stars"

Personality Quiz!

Are You a Jules, an Elinor, a Charlotte, or a Teddy?

1. If someone offers you orange eye shadow what do you do?

- smell it, LOVING the scent of creamsicles, and glom it on all over your eyes until they shine like little zesty tangerines.
- Smash it into one million pieces and use it to create a new and stimulating orange play environment for your worm playground.
- Admire it politely, but say no thank you since orange is not really your color.
- Feel extremely puzzled about why exactly anyone would even make orange eye shadow in the first place since orange isn't really meant for the face and is really meant only for ugly t-shirts.

2. Your teacher asks what you want to be when you grow up. You say:

- "You're kidding, right? An actress."
- "It's a toss-up between a doctor, a scientist or a researcher, since I want to take care of people, or maybe animals, but I also want to do experiments but I think you get to do experiments either way, so maybe I'll be a doctor. Or maybe all three."
- "I think it's a bit early to answer a question like that, but whatever I'll be is written in the stars."
- "Oh no, I wasn't even THINKING about when I grow up, and now I can ONLY think about what I'll be when I grow up and some people say I'm a little dramatic so maybe I should act, but I think I like writing, too (as in lists!) and I also like using a glue gun and I like inventing recipes. I have to start a list now..."

3. Your little brother challenges you to a scooter race. You:

- Go get your sparkly scooter, put on your blingy helmet, put your game face on, then try not to stomp and cry when you lose despite your best effort, because that would be unbecoming of a future Hollywood star.
- Try to figure out if you should take the inside track or the outside and what, if anything, might give you the best chances of winning, then decide to throw caution to the wind just this once and go flying into a wall. Good thing you are wearing a helmet.
- You tell him that as a practical matter you are taller and faster and that you wouldn't want him to think he might win. Then, when he agrees anyway, you blush through your victorious moment.
- You picture yourself on a race track with noise and fans cheering all around but that makes you too nervous, so you think about the ocean to calm yourself down again, then you race to the finish, giving your little brother a big old high-five even if he wins just by the tips of his rain boots.

4. Someone tells you that you have star-quality and that you should be an actor. You:

- Bat your eyelashes, tell them that, as a matter of fact, you already ARE an actress and then tell them you may or may not know someone in Hollywood who will make you wildly famous one day, so they should probably take advantage and get your autograph now, while they can.
- Think about the odds of making it in show business, and decide against it immediately.
- Tell them you are more of a behind-the-scenes type, but that managing stars might not be a bad idea. Then say, "Hey, now that I think of it, maybe that's what I'll be when I grow up!"
- Tell them that you will if you can somehow get all the butterflies in your stomach to pipe down already!

If you answered mostly A's, well, I think you know by now you might be Charlotte, which means you are little bit fancy (okay, a lot fancy) but you are also a good friend and very tuned in to show business.

If you answered mostly B's, you are a Teddy-like scientist. You love to explore the world through experiments and observation and maybe sometimes, you just get a little queasy from thinking too much. Who doesn't?!

If you answered mostly C's, you are just about the most polite and even-tempered kid around. You are an Elinor—full of charm and wisdom, you are a loyal friend, which comes in handy with all the big personalities in your life!

If you answered mostly D's, look out Hollywood! You are a budding star like Jules, but maybe you don't know it yet because you are so caught up thinking about all the ways you might ruin it, or maybe you're worried about how those worms are doing. Or how your best friend will feel if you accidentally forget to write her a note back. But don't fret too much, you'll figure it all out—because Jules is resourceful and funny and kind, and so are you!